MARKET PLACE.

PREFACE.

THE revision of that part of the Register comprised in this volume, and particularly the period 1850-1874, has naturally been a far easier task than was the case in the earlier part. The entries in the Album were accurately transcribed for the edition of 1886, and the corrections now made have been for the most part supplied by the bearers of the names themselves. The Album has, however, been carefully studied and the contemporary School Lists examined, with the result that a few omitted names have been added to the Roll.

Similarly in the annotation, the Editor has had the benefit of a sound foundation to work upon. The Editor of the volume printed in 1886 had no time-honoured glosses to mislead him, and the majority of his notes only require the additions to them which time has brought. In order to make these additions correctly circulars, specifying the points requiring attention in their own individual cases, have been sent to upwards of two thousand Old Rugbeians. That eighty per cent. have failed to reply is taken to mean rather that they are content with the old notes, than that they are indifferent as to the correctness of their entry, or the descriptions given of their careers. The Editor has, nevertheless, made every effort to bring all notes up to date, even in cases where personal returns might reasonably have been expected.

The list of Boarding Houses tentatively given in Volume i., has elicited more exact information, and so far as it concerns the period covered by this Volume, is reprinted below. The point of interest being, who took on the Boarders on the departure of any House Master, a somewhat different way of arranging the list has been adopted. It should, perhaps, be mentioned that in former days it was not uncommon for boys to migrate from one House to another, but these migrations can only be dated by a reference to the School Lists.

The detection of some more ghost names conjured up by the "Companion to the Rugby School Register," and unsuspectingly adopted in Volume i., renders a list of further Addenda to that Volume necessary.

The special thanks of the Editor are due to Dr. James for his appeal to the Press, which has elicited information from all parts of the world: to many Old Rugbeians, who have answered specific inquiries: and particularly to Morris Davies, W. B. Gair, and G. A. Solly, who have assisted greatly in tracing names from Rugby, London, and Liverpool, respectively.
